Our Vision is to be a place where connections are made and opportunities are realised.

Our Mission is to consistently meet the needs of the community by providing quality community development activities, programs and services.

Performing and Visual arts in Emerald (PAVE)

It's that time of year again where the hills communities poured out into Emerald's streets and into local venues for a good dose of arts, music, idle chitchat, communing, skills building and community connection with the purpose of having some fun. There is not enough of that in our lives and it was a great time to celebrate the end of summer with a big fat community bash for the week of April 8-15, starting with the ever popular FunFest.

The theme for the Performing And Visual arts in Emerald (PAVE) 2018 was inspired by the ABC series War on Waste. Participating artists and performers from all arts genres were encouraged to consider how Rejuvenate, Rediscover and Rethink might relate to their respective artistic endeavours.

As the 2018 PAVE programme demonstrated, outcomes have been both surprising and delightful insofar as:

in rejuvenating and re-purposing ideas and material, artists have been inspired to create innovative clothing, music and utility objects families can engage in the likes of making a scarecrow from recycled materials at the library, enjoy an up-cycled fashion expo, or browse craft-stall wares on FunFest day

the theme also informs the perennial PAVE dance workshops/ performance pieces, and more generally revisits the history and lives of icons of stage, screen and stereo

PAVE 2018 cover artwork was commissioned to reflect the theme too. Local artist Martha Silver Breninger of Healing Spirit Creations has done a wonderful job. Martha is recognised for her distinctive two dimensional works, as well as her enchanting felted creations.

With the festival now complete, we'd like to extend a big thank you to the Emerald Community and especially the many volunteers who helped so much. A short recap with images captured at events is on page 20-21.

IMMERSIVE BUSHFIRE EXPERIENCE

Each summer in Australia, bushfires pose a significant threat to many Australian communities. An important tool for preparing, reducing the risk of death, injury and property loss is a 'bushfire survival plan'. Yet people who have been through fires report that when the fire is upon them, they are surprised, astonished or simply rendered unable to think clearly or implement their plans. They were not prepared for the overwhelming experience of the fire. Not only the threat and fear, but the unexpected intensity of sound, heat, smoke, the lack of visibility or ability to communicate and disorientation in familiar environments made it hard to think or make good decisions.

The Immersive Bushfire Experience is currently undergoing community testing before being launched to the general Victoria community in September 2018. As community partners for the research and development of this project, Emerald Community House hosted the IBE trailer on March 25 and hills residents volunteered to test the project and provide important feedback.

The Immersive Bushfire Experience provides a unique mobile learning space aiming to help people to better understand what being in a bushfire is actually like, to learn how you will respond to the threat and what can be done to better manage responses and emotions.

The real-life events of two families during the 2009 Victorian bushfires have been drawn on to assist development of the experience. Through careful and sensitive examination of their first-hand accounts, a 'gap' was identified between people's expectation of bushfire and the reality of a bushfire.

In behavioural science, this 'gap' is referred to as psychological or emotional preparedness. This is the extent to which people are aware of and are able to anticipate what it would be like to be in a very frightening situation under threat, as well as have the ability to effectively manage thoughts, emotions and behaviours to respond to danger appropriately.

Many people have found this unexpected reality caused them to disregard plans, intentions and decisions made without understanding the impact of the actual bushfire threat. They found it hard to think ahead, weigh the options and make good decisions.

We look forward to the continued development, fine tuning and improvement of this resource to better prepare Victorians for fire events.

The United Nations defines community development as "a process where community members come together to take collective action and generate solutions to common problems. Civic leaders, activists, involved citizens and professionals work to improve various aspects of community life, typically aiming to build stronger and more resilient local communities.

The International Association for Community Development (www.iacdglobal.org), encourages community developers to promote participative democracy, sustainable development, human rights, economic opportunity, equality and social justice through the organisation, education and empowerment of people within their communities. Victoria and the Dandenongs in particular have a significant investment and legacy with many organisations working within a community development strategy.

The Start of a Movement

Neighbourhood and Community Houses were born out of the People's Movement of the early 1970's. The "Sherbrook Houses" included Selby as the first Neighbourhood House to form in the area in 1975. A year later, Kallista and Coonara followed and then Emerald Community House (ECH) was established in 1977. The "Sherbrook Houses" gained a reputation for solidarity and shared community participation philosophy – giving a voice to the local community members who had previously struggled to be heard.

In 1994 Council amalgamations had a big impact on many local networks. The amalgamations also brought to the surface the inequality of funding across local government areas.

Nearly all of the Sherbrook cluster went to Yarra Ranges and Knox which favoured increasing their funding. ECH is the only Sherbrook centre to be transferred to the then newly formed Cardinia Shire Council.

Emerald Community House is a not for profit incorporated association driven by a volunteer community representative committee from Emerald, Cockatoo, Gembrook and beyond. From the very beginning of the centre in 1977, educational programs for all abilities and special needs, childcare, youth, wellbeing, community enterprises (markets and festivals) and promotion of the arts have strengthened the general community and supported people in need or in transition to other pathways in life. Operating as a Centre of Resilience (CoR), ECH has pushed the boundaries of conventional neighbourhood house operating theory through CoR and strived to diversify the operations in maintaining a stable and viable organisation long into the future. This has led to opportunities such as the presentation of ECH's Centre of Resilience model at the IACD's World Conference of Community Development in Ireland. ECH will also take to the podium at the Diversity in Disasters Conference to be held on April 17 – 18 at the MCG speaking about The Community Sector: A powerful force in building community resilience.

Emerald has a solid investment in community development practitioners who work together in diverse ways to strengthen the community. Community strength is not something that is given but rather created at the grass roots level, enabling the communities to be flexible and adaptive when facing social, environmental and economic challenges whenever they occur.

Community Forum
Friday
May 25th
7-9pm

#WeatherSmarts is part of ECH's Centre of Resilience strategy to prepare our community for climate calamities such as extreme storms, bushfires, high winds and thunderstorms which can create a serious disruption for us very quickly.

Just how ready and adaptable are we? What do we need to know?

You will gain knowledge from these top speakers who must deal with the consequences of climate driven disasters. You will be able to ask them questions about your own shared responsibilities when living in a high risk environment.

- What can we expect? How will we communicate?
- How long could we be isolated if power outages cause the communications networks to go down?
- Can we cope for 72hrs without power, communications or services?
- What are other communities doing? What should we be doing in our community?

With this third forum in a series, you can test your perception about your readiness for disruptive weather and its consequences by attending this informative forum where you get to ask some questions of your own and improve your #WeatherSmarts.

Expert panellists:

Dr Justin Peter, the BoM Senior Climatologist and Climate Monitoring

Rosanna Lacorcchia, Manager, NBN™ Local

Brett Ellis, Emergency Management Victoria, General Manager, Risk and Resilience

Dinner from 6-7 provided by Dig In Community Café, recognised by EMV's Community Resilience Framework and as a case study in Monash University's Compendium of Victorian Community Based-Resilience Building Case Studies.

Core Humanitarian Standards

ECH invites other community groups engaged in community development activities and services to adopt appropriate standards such as the Core Humanitarian Standard (CHS) which is recognized throughout the international humanitarian sector. This standard should be embraced by governments, councils and community groups who are involved in supporting people in crisis or in high risk disaster areas. How about it Yarra Ranges and Cardinia Shire Councils?
